Advice for Success from the 8 EarthTeam

- 1) Breakfast is Important
Please try to find a quick option that your child can eat before school. It is very hard to learn when you are hungry.
- 2) Set Limits on Technology & Set a Bedtime
It's hard to teach tech overloaded, sleep deprived students. Start having the discussion now about getting back on a normal sleep routine.
- 3) Create a location to charge laptop nightly
Starting the day with a dead computer leads to chaos and feeling behind.
- 4) Allow your Kids to Solve their Own Problems

It is great to set up systems for academic success, but problem solving skills are essential for high school students. Feel free to keep open lines of communication with us, but encourage your child to take steps to solve their own problems by communicating directly with the teachers.

Communication and Schoology

In our experience parents want to feel connected to the classroom, but often have difficulties knowing where to look. We will send monthly email newsletters (fill out the parent form above to be added to the communication list,) however our Schoology pages will be your go to source for daily assignments (Check the calendar page.) Most parents do not know that they can sign up to receive a weekly recap email from Schoology which will go over their child's grades, missing work, and upcoming assignments.

If something is happening in your child's life, no matter how big or small, which will make learning difficult for them, we want to know. Please reach out at anytime to give us a heads up so we can help or just be aware. bhealey@cvschools.org We hope this is your child's best year of school yet!

To families who are willing and able, we have a few items which would enhance your child's classroom experience. Any purchase will be directly sent to our classrooms and be greatly appreciated.
